Nº. Sesión: 1

Geospatially Enabled Ecosystem for Europe, GeoE3

Nils Hempelmann (male) Innovation Program Project Manager, is responsible for planning and managing OGC Innovation Program initiatives. Mr. Hempelmann holds a PhD in Geography and provides a combination of an extensive scientific background in climate change data assessment and sustainable development as well as software engineering for scientific data processing and information delivery. Furthermore, he gained deep insights of the United Nations climate policy framework. He contributes to OGC with his almost 20 years of research, scientific software development and climate service consultation experiences from international project contributions in research environments.

At JIIIDE Nils Hempelmann will present the general idea of the GeoE3 project and how spatial location information can be provided for specific use-cases.
